

CO-DESIGN

Haecceity Studio's team took off their architecture hats and became participants in a co-design workshop facilitated by the Canadian Cohousing Network. Prior to the workshop, a set of stakeholder personas was developed, based on Richmond census data and personal interviews, to represent the cultural and socio-economic diversity of the CO-CO-MO community. Each participant took on the role of a persona and advocated for their specific needs and wants from the CO-CO-MO. The resulting site layout, programming, and housing mix was a result of this process.
